

ABSTRACT

A system and method for inserting advertising into a video program after the video program is paused. When the video program is paused a still image from the video program is provided in its stead. An advertisement image is provided in addition to the still image.